The State and Organised Labour in Botswana Monageng Mogalakwe 2019-05-23 First published in 1997, this volume departs from conventional analysis of Botswana's political economy and focuses on the second phase of Botswana's capitalist development from 1966-1990, arguing that even in a formally liberal democratic country, the imperatives of economic growth and development in a capitalist context give rise to the state's close supervision and control of organised labour. Taking inspiration from Marx's theories of history, Monageng Mogalakwe examines the capitalist form of the Botswana state and its relationships with the trade unions, labour law, industrial relations, class struggle and organised labour in a period characterised by direct state intervention in the economy and in industrial relations.

Syncrisis: the Dynamics of Health Education, and Human Resources Development Study for Botswana Richard Christensen 1989 An issue of the highest concern for both the Church and society is the AIDS epidemic. In this report the Synod of Malawi here considers the extent to which the Church and civil institutions of the country have responded to the AIDS pandemic in the region. Formerly a Anglican Bishop of Malawi, the Bishop addresses the pandemic in the region. Formerly a Anglican Bishop of Malawi, the Bishop addresses the pandemic in the region.
