A Separate Development

Environmental Crime and Social Conflict

The second is the love story of An African Love Story

An African Love Story

Killing for Profit

Killing for Profit

A Separate Development

Environmental Crime and Social Conflict

The second is the love story of An African Love Story

An African Love Story

Killing for Profit

Killing for Profit

A Separate Development

Environmental Crime and Social Conflict

The second is the love story of An African Love Story

An African Love Story

Killing for Profit
their horns has led to a catastrophic fall in black rhino numbers. Meanwhile a corrupt South African government turns a blind eye to the international trade in rhino horn. This is the background to Peter Hain's brilliantly pacey and timely thriller. Battling to defend the dwindling rhino population, a veteran freedom fighter is forced to break his lifetime loyalty to the ANC as he confronts corruption at the very highest level. The stakes are high. Can the country’s ancient rhino herd be saved from extinction by state-sponsored poaching? Will Mandela’s ‘rainbow nation’ be irretrievably betrayed by political corruption and cronyism?

Recognising Postnatal Depression

Andrea Taub-Da Costa 2012-09-28

The journey to motherhood is sometimes clouded with unrealistic expectations and society’s unfair judgement of any woman who isn’t immediately, indefinitely happy with her new baby. Giving birth is a major life adjustment and rite of passage for all mothers. This book is for anyone who is struggling or has struggled on that journey, who may be grappling with confusion, anxiety, fear or anger. It offers hope, support and comfort to all those women who feel lost amid the stresses of daily life. As a medical doctor, a clinical psychologist and their patient, each author contributes their own personal experience and expertise in the area of postnatal depression to an open and enlightening discussion of what that illness is, how to recognise it and ways to achieve recovery of body, mind and spirit. They call on health care professionals and society at large to respond timorously, knowledgeably and with empathy to what is, for many mothers, a medical emergency. Women from different walks of life agreed to share with the authors, and now with the reader, their tough yet transformational experiences of postnatal depression, offering hope and encouragement and revealing the power of healing through openness and the telling of their stories.

African Muckraking

Anya Schiffrin 2018-04-10

African Muckraking is the first collection of investigative and campaigning journalism written by Africans about Africa. The editors delved into the history of modern Africa to find the most important and compelling pieces of journalism on the stories that matter. This collection of 41 pieces of African journalism includes passionate and committed writing on labor abuses, police brutality, women’s rights, the struggle for democracy and independence on the continent and other subjects. Each piece of writing is introduced by a noted scholar or journalist who explains the context and why the journalism mattered. Some of the highlights include: Feminist writing from Tunisia into the 1930s, exposés of the secret tactics planned by the South African government during apartheid, Richard Mabey’s searing description of the albino brothers in Tanzania who fear for their lives, and the reporting by Liberian journalist Mae Azango on genital cutting, which forced her to go into hiding. Many African Muckrakers have been imprisoned and even killed for their work. African Muckraking is a must-read for anyone who cares about journalism and Africa.