time good to revisit the simple American Captured. Rustic camping visited reviving aspects of the American frontier. Just as the western frontier was disappearing, some families returned to the first frontier among mountains and lakes of the Northwest. Through campsteading, these families preserved elements of the frontier ethos. Campsteading facilitate particular experiences involving nature and family. Breen investigates campsteading experience, and through it the nature of human experience generally. This book is the first detailed account of campsteading, the first application of critical realism in anthropology, and the first anthropological application of John Dewey’s evolutionary model of experience. Building on Dewey, the author further analyzes experience into its levels, orders, and features.

Thanks for thanking Patricia G. Lange 2019-11-15 YouTube has become a lifeblood of the modern world, offering opportunities to share ideas, innovations, and insights. In her recent book: Thanks for Watching, Patricia G. Lange offers an anthropological perspective on this heavily mediated social environment by analyzing videos and their users. Her book shows how YouTube videos’ interactions with online communities and viewers shape the way we think about our culture. In her work, she demonstrates the ways in which YouTube can be used as a tool for social change and how it influences the way we interact with one another.

The book examines the power of YouTube videos to shape our understanding of social issues, such as poverty, inequality, and discrimination. She illustrates how individuals and communities use these videos to challenge and change social norms and attitudes. The book also explores the role of YouTube in shaping the way we think about our culture and how it influences our understanding of the world. The book concludes with a discussion of how YouTube can be used as a tool for social change and how it influences the way we interact with one another.

Another unique feature of this edition is the inclusion of a complete list of all references used in the book. This allows readers to easily consult additional resources and further explore the topics covered in the book. The book is an essential resource for students, scholars, and practitioners in the field of anthropology.

Societal Resilience and Response to Contagious Diseases and Pandemics

Abdrabo, Amal Adel 2022-03-04 For the first time in modern human history, the response to a global health crisis was required among all countries no matter their wealth, size, or economic status. Every country was impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, and as it surged across the world, it took many lives with it. Thus, it is essential to study the ability of human societies to cope with the changes caused by pandemics. Societal Resilience and Response to Contagious Diseases and Pandemics adopts and maintains an interdisciplinary-transdisciplinary approach to investigating societal resilience. This book builds upon different insights of what has already been done for humanity to survive the spread of a deadly pandemic. Covering topics such as the role of healthcare professionals, political economy, and consumption culture, it is an essential resource for professionals, business leaders, policymakers, professors, graduate students, researchers, and academicians.

Monsoon Islam

Sebastian R. Prange 2018-05-03 Between the twelfth and sixteenth centuries, a distinct form of Islamic thought and practice developed among Muslim trading communities of the Indian Ocean. Sebastian R. Prange argues that this ‘Monsoon Islam’ was shaped by merchants not sultans, forged by commercial imperatives rather than in battle, and defined by the reality of Muslims living within non-Muslim societies. Focusing on India’s Malabar Coast, the much-fabled ‘land of pepper’, Prange provides a case study of how Monsoon Islam developed in response to concrete economic, socio-religious, and political challenges. Because communities of Muslim merchants across the Indian Ocean were part of shared commercial, scholarly, and political networks, developments on the Malabar Coast illustrate a broader, trans-oceanic history of the evolution of Islam across monsoon Asia. This history is told through four spaces that are examined in their physical manifestations as well as symbolic meanings: the Port, the Mosque, the Palace, and the Sea.
