Understanding Animal Breeding Richard M. Bourdon 1997 Intended as a learning text, rather than simply a reference, this work addresses the abstract concepts of animal breeding. It presents the necessary mathematics, but assumes no previous expertise in animal genetics, breeding, or animal husbandry. Its focus is on practical issues, and as such issues that are not specific to any breed or region. It stresses application, then explains theory for an overall understanding of the subject.

Introduction to African Philosophy San O. Imbo 1998-03-26 Organized topically rather than historically, this book provides an excellent introduction to the subject. Drawing on the growth of African philosophy over the past three decades, the author focuses on five central questions: What are the definitions of African philosophy? Is ethno-philosophy logically possible? Are African philosophies unique or do they claim to be "unique"? Can African philosophy be done in foreign languages such as English and French? Are there useful ways to make connections between African philosophy and modern philosophy? While Imbo takes a multi-disciplinary and transnational approach, Imbo stakes out an important place for African philosophy. Imbo's book is an invaluable introduction to this dynamic and growing field.

Introduction to Business Information Systems Rolf T. Wijang 2003 05-21 After discussing the PC and the role of computers in local and global networks, the authors explain the fundamentals of data management, as well as the support of firms' functions and processes through information processing. The concepts are related to a discussion of modern and integrated application systems in manufacturing and service industries. These application examples make up the core of the book. Many application examples illustrate the methodologies addressed.

African Awakening Firoze Manji 2012 An insightful and comprehensive compilation of the years' events, this record offers in-the-moment and analysis as well as long-term analyses, which have implications for the future. The uprisings in Tunisia, Egypt, and Libya have seized the attention of media across the world, as many Africans, and in particular, African intellectuals, have applauded these developments. Inzwischen, Ethio-pi, Dijibouti, Uganda, and in other parts of the African continent have virtually unannounced. Arguing that these disturbances are the result of decades of declining health and living standards, the authors argue that the development of the majority, this account provides an overview of the struggle for democracy, which constitutes a reawakening of the spirit of freedom and justice.

Conveyancing Gabriel Brennan 2007-10 Conveyancing is designed for law students and new lawyers studying applied land law on the Irish Professional Practice Course. As the law changes at a fast pace, this book has been fully revised and updated to include reference to proposed reforms, recently published bills and new legislation. It includes coverage of the new Law of Conveyancing Act 2006 and the fundamental changes proposed by the Land and Conveyancing Law Reform Bill 2006. It explains what makes the conveyancing process. The texts comprising this volume disprove the misconceptions that Africa has never understood itself and has never contributed to the enrichment of knowledge, the development of rational thought, philosophy, the arts, science and technology as well as civilization. For the members of the recently established network Africa In-The-World, the contributions dealing with musical rhythms, dance traditions, and traditional celebrations mirror a process that continues unabated to this day. The multiple and significant African contributions are often difficult to see because they have long since been adopted and adapted by non-Africans. After the construction of a universal humanity - one conceived in terms of a non-race and take mortality - Daloye and Conley, E. J.
