The story is set in 1965 in a simmering Oklahoman town, near the state capital, where the wealthy Socs and the poor Greasers constantly battle each other, often through the lens of the new car market. Ponyboy and Johnny, who live in the same neighborhood, take on the role of enforcers.

On the evening of the drive-in, Ponyboy and his friend Johnny get jumped from a group of Socs. After a violent fight, both boys are shot. The Greasers pay Ponyboy's medical bills and care for his injuries, giving him the chance to recover. However, Johnny, who was not a Greaser, dies in the hospital. This event marks a turning point in the story, as the characters begin to understand the dangers of their lives.

After the death of his friend, Ponyboy becomes more determined to protect his family and friends. He starts to see the world in a different light, realizing the beauty and the pain of his community. The story ends with Ponyboy's decision to leave the town, in search of a better life.
