Asphalt--the name representing the essence of the city and the hard, layered, textured history of Los Angeles, and the unique spirit of a place where dreams are born and broken. Seeking healing and connection with and through the other housemates. Rux's poetic fiction blurs the lines between documentary and fiction, exploring themes of identity, place, and the search for belonging. Each chapter is a poetic exploration of a different aspect of life in Los Angeles, from the city's iconic landmarks to the stories of its residents. Rux's writing is both raw and beautiful, capturing the essence of the city and the people who call it home.
